FIELD RESEARCH EXPERIENCE ABROAD

I have field research experience abroad totally about three years.

Brazil, one month (2002 and 2003)

Participation at the World Social Forum in Porto Alegre. Interviews with 10 social movement organisers.

Germany, six months (1991)

During my BA-thesis in Sociology I made participatory observation and interviews, studying a system-critical social movement.

India, three months (2001, 2004, 2010)

The field visits included interviews with 20 representatives of grassroots' movements doing nonviolent resistance to “globalisation”, international regimes (e.g. WTO) and transnational corporations in India. Some researchers was also interviewed.

South Africa, two months (1994), and two weeks (2009)

The field visit was made to prepare future research on nonviolent resistance against the apartheid regime. Contacts where made and about 20 interviews with organisers, educators and leading activists from ANC, UDF, MK and others. The visit 2009 was to reconnect and build research cooperation with universities in Durban and Johannesburg.

Extensive travelling in Europe during 1986-1999, approximately two years abroad totally, in order to take part in movement activities, as well as making interviews with activists and trainers of nonviolent resistance movements.
